BRYAN A HERO IN SALEM.

THE LITTLE TOWN WHERE HE WAS BORN FULL OF ENTHUSIASM.

HIS OLD NEIGHBORS TAKE A PERSONAL PRIDE IN THE HONOR THAT HAS COME TO HIM-THE CANDIDATE TAKES PART IN A FAMILY REUNION AND THEN GOES TO CEN-

TRALIA TO ATTEND A MEETING. salem, Ill., July 14 .- Salem awoke this morning to the realization that it is a place of some importance, with a full-fledged Presidential cansidate in town, and that candidate a Salem boy, and the feeling of the people is one of pride. Last night's demonstration is said to have been the greatest ever indulged in here. The display of fireworks was lavish, and the procession from the station to the Bryan residence was a continuous succession of enthusiastic outbursts. Broadway, the principal thoroughfare, is like its name, and there was plenty of room for the accommodation of the multitude who joined in the demonstration, either as active participants or along the sidewalks. route of the procession could be easily traced this morning by the scores of exploded man candles and skyrockets lying in the roadways. Candle grease had left a mark on nearly every window sill, and the trees still held festoons of Chinese lanterns, which had done service the night before.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan spent the night at the old family homestead, where the mother of the Democratic candidate had passed away a fortnight previously at the age of sixty-two years. The Bryans are a large family in Salem and its vicinity, and are well known throughout Marion County. Mr. Bryan's father, who died sixteen years ago, held Circuit Court here for many years, and was a man of prominence. Mr. Bryan's visits to Salem have been frequent, and the ends of his boyhood have not had a chance to forget him since he left Illinois thirteen years ago, to make his home in Nebraska. That his former townspeople are proud of his success was shown in many ways last night. They forgot his newly acquired prominence in the desire to give him hearty welcome, and it was "Hello, ly," and "God bless you, Will," on all sides. "What did I tell you two years ago?" cried one man, as he grasped the candidate's hand. "That's so," answered Mr. Bryan, smiling; "you

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan have been at the Bryan homestead here while the father and mother were in Chicago. It was largely to see the children that Mr. Bryan decided to make this visit to Salem. Ruth Bryan, the eldest child, a miss of eleven years, was the only one of the three awake last night when her parents arrived, and she clung closely to her mother during the demonstration about the house. The younger ones, William and Grace, slept soundly through all the noise made by exploding firecrackers, anvil salutes, hissing

The house where Mr. Bryan was born is still standing, and it has acquired an additional interest since last Friday to the Sa'em people. It is one of those plain frames with gabled roof so familiar it the older parts of the West. People in the surrounding country came in last night to help the two hotels in the little town are crowded

Many of those who are visiting here are old friends of Mr. Bryan, and they have flocked to the house of his sisters to pay their respects Bryan badges are seen everywhere, and from the present enthusiastic feeling of the townspeople it would not be strange if the Legislature were asked to allow the name of Salem to be changed to that of her favorite and most completely tired out when he went to bed, long fter midnight, and his sister, Mrs. J. W. Baird, who presides over the old homestead, would not allow him to be awakened. Before 9 o'clock more than three score of people had called, but All of these were relatives and old friends, and the usual inquiry was, "Is Will up

At noon to-day there was a great gathering of the Bryan family at the home of Mrs. B. F. Marshall, a sister of Mrs. Bryan's mother, opposite the Courthouse Square. Family dinners have been a feature of the family every time Mr. Bryan has been in Salem. Among those who sat down at the table with the candidate and his wife were Mrs. Davenport, an aunt; Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Marshall, cousins; Mrs. Baird and her children by her first husband; Miss Laura Nelson, and Frank and Will Nelson, Mrs. Webster, a cousin, and her son, and the Misses Nannie and Mamie Bryan, sisters of Mr. Bryan.

After dinner Mr. and Mrs. Bryan drove out to the farm, where part of the nominee's boyhood was spent, and the rest of the afternoon was taken up in visiting relatives in the surrounding country.

Mr. Bryan has some business to attend to here and he wants to clear this up before starting for Lincoln Thursday morning. He went to Centralia, the nearest large town, this evening to deliver an address, and to-morrow he will make a speech to the Salem people on the issues of the campaign. Salem is getting ready for the occasion and will outdo even the demonstration of last night. Mr. Bryan says he will make his headquarters in Lincoln, and not in Omaha, as reported.

Centralia, Ill., July 14 .- Mr. Bryan arrived here at 6:10 o'clock. He was placed in the private carriage of Captain S. L. Dwight and driven to the latter's home. Mrs. Dwight and her sistet, Mrs. Hausler, cousins of Mr. Bryan, assisted the candidate and his wife in the reception given at Captain Dwight's house to the women of the town. Afterward there was a meeting at City Park, where Mr. and Mrs. Bryan shook hands with a large number of people. A band was in attendance. A special train brought excursionats and the Bryan Club from Nashville, with anothe- band, and the Silver Club, from Ashley, and a delegation from Litchfield, were also

The reception it City Hall Park was not yet over before there were many cries for Mr. Bryan, and in response the candidate mounted an improvised stand. He made an address strongly reminiscent in passion and vigor of his famous speech in Chicago last Thursday. He said in form did not promise any complete monetary system.

The Democratic party outlined what it desired to have done, and declared that the silver dollar should be of full legal tender for all debts public and private, and that such legislation should be enacted as is necessary to the restoration of unilmited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid of any other nation. We also declared that the silver dollar should be full legal tender for all debts public and private, and that such legislation should be enacted as is necessary to prevent for the future the demonetization of any legal money. The platform declared that the Government should exercise the right to redeem its obligations in eitner gold or silver.

The issue is drawn, and we have our choice in this campaign between an American financial system for the American people and an English financial system for the English aristocracy. If I mistake not the patriotism of the people, who have never been appealed to in vain, there can be but one issue in this campaign, and but one result. If they ask us what about other questions, we tell them that so long as the right of self-government is in danger there is no other questions, we tell them that so long as the right of self-government is in danger there is no other question. Why discuss questions if we have not the power to decide them?

"But I want to impress upon your minds two things. I want to ask two questions. They are questions that will be asked over and over again in this campaign. They are questions. They are questions are these: If the gold standard is a good thing, why should we try to get rid of it; and if the gold standard is a bad thing, why should we wait until some other Nations are willing to help us let go? We care not upon which issue they force the fight. We are prepared to meet them upon either issue, or both."

THE MANAGER OF FREGOLI'S TOUR.

HENRY GREENWALL TO DIRECT THE BUSINESS OF THE ITALIAN ENTERTAINER.

There is no doubt that Henry Greenwall is to be the manager of the tour which Fregoli is to make next season. It was said a few days ago that omebody had cast the reproach of a question on that statement. This hurt Mr. Greenwall's feelings, and he feared that it might strike deeper and hurt his business. So he asked a number of reporters to come up to the Knickerbocker Theatre Building known till yesterday as the Abbey's Theatre Buildproof that he was really to be the Italian entertainer's manager. When two men are seen together the natural inference is that one of them is the manager of the other, and there is no trouble about deciding which is which when one of them is known to have the habit of managing and the other known to have the habit of managing and the other of being managed.

The reporters were carefully selected for their experience. They were asked to be on hand yesterday afternoon, and they gave it as their expert opinion that the two men whom they saw together were indeed Mr. Greenwall and Fregoli. Mr. Greenwall said in English that he was to be Fregoli's manager, and Fregoli did not deny it in Italian. The tour is to begin at the Boston Theatre on September 7, and is to include the cities of Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago and Cincinnati. Fregoli is to give the most of the entertainment himself, presenting some eighty characters, including a few local celepities wherever he goes. He hopes that by the time he gets back to New-York he will be able to give a sketch in English. The public, and especially out-of-town theatrical managers, may rest assured that Mr. Greenwall is to be his manager.

There is a broad plazza about the house, and the grounds are extensive. The children—who are not allowed to wander from them—find plenty of space and variety. In the rear, and further up the hill, is the chestnut grove. It is cool and shady, and all through are swings and hammocks.

The life that the children lead here is simple and wholesome in the extreme. The breakfast hour is 8 o'clock, and after that there is a fine, long morning before them. Lunch comes at 12:30, and after four or five more hours of happiness there is 6 o'clock dinner. Then the children all come together in one room, and there is a short and simple chapel service. When 8 o'clock comes every one is safely tucked away in bed. On Sundays the day's programme is varied, and the children go in a hody to the church in the village.

When children are invited to Miss Neilson's home the only stipulation made is that they be among the very poorest and needlest that the great city holds. A world of read is done at the Chappaqua home, and praise elements.

HE THINKS THE SHROUDS WERE MIXED.

A NURSE GIVES THE PROBABLE EXPLANATION

OF THE ADAMS MYSTERY. substitution of an unknown body for that of Arthur Adams, who died several days ago on Blackwell's Island, was partially explained yesterday by William C. Holton, the nurse who attended Adams in his last sickness. Holton called at the Morgue yesterday morning, and, after looking at the eight bodies taken there from Biackwell's the eight codies taken their from blackwers the laland on Monday, picked out one labelled James McGrane as that of Adams. He was unable to explain how the body of McGrane, who was an old man with a full beard, could have been substituted for that of Adams, a young man with a smooth face.

The nurse drew attention to the fact, however, that a post-mortem operation had been performed on Adam's body, and said he supposed that, when the shrouds were removed from the two bodies to perform the autopsies on them, the shrouds with the labels attached had become mixed and had been replaced on the wrong bodies.

EXAGGERATED REPORTS CONCERNING HIS CONDITION

THE INDISPOSITION DUE LARGELY, IT IS SAID, TO WORRY OVER HIS SON'S ILLNESS-TAN-FRONT OF THE HOUSE TO

The curtains of the house, too, were pulled down, and this added to the curiosity of the passers-by. Groups stood at the corners, and many contradictory rumors were soon in circulation. Fortunately, however, they proved to be much exaggerated. Drs. Draper, Delafield and McLane were summoned to the house in the early evening, and shortly afterward W. C. Whitney was seen to enter the house. A friend of the family who left the house about 9 o'clock said that Mr. Vanderbilt, sr., was not seriously ill. It was learned from another source that Mr. Vanderbilt, sr., returned home yesterday, and was not feeling well, and that he had not been in the best of condition for some time, due in great part to worriment over the illness of his

Mrs. Varderbilt, it was said, ordered the laying of the tabbark, believing that it would be better for both her husband and her son to have the noise of passing vehicles deadened.

THAT IS THE NEW NAME FOR ABBEY'S

PLANS FOR THE FIRST SEASON. Abbey's Theatre has at last been renamed. It is be called the Knickerbecker Theatre. The announcement was made by Al Hayman, its new man ager, yesterday. Mr. Hayman has been back from Europe for more than a week, but he delayed any announcement about the theatre because he wanted an opportunity to consult with Mr. Goelet about it before making anything public.

The house will reopen on September 14, with Francis Wilson and his company in "Half a King." This attraction will be followed by Charles Fronman's production of "The Sign of the Cross," for which an English company will be brought over. Beerbohm Tree will then begin his second American tour in his new play, "The Seats of the Mighty." After this there will be a production of the stage form of Mrs. Burnett's "A Lady of Quality." The Bostonians will then come for a long stay, singing new operas.

The company in control of the theatre is to be designated as Al Hayman & Co., and it is understood to consist, besides Mr. Hayman, of Charles Frohman and Messrs. Nixon and Zimmerman, of Philadelphia. The only alteration of any importance which is to be made in the theatre will be the putting in of a new ventilating plant.

THE BOLTING PAPERS.

NOT THE MAN, BUT THE PRINCIPLE. From The Dayton Times.

From The Utica Press.

From The Utica Press.

McKinley was the thoughtful choice of a great majority of his party. His candidacy had been growing in the minds of men for months, indeed, for years. Bryan was nominated unexpectedly to 99 out of every 100 Democrats. He was not mentioned in the reports as a real probability till the Convention had been in session two days. His selection was the result of frenzy rather than the deliberate act of delegates whose constituents had made a choice. The best judgment of his party all over the United States chose McKinley. The sudden freak of the Convention made Bryan its nominee.

THE WORST OF IT.

From The Chattanooga Times.

From The Chattanooga Times.

The country may far better afford a siump in silver than that it go over the precipice of anarchy, to land in the embrace of imperialism.

God knows the first five paragraphs of the Chicago platform are bad enough, bad as bad could be, on the currency question, but they are angelic purity and innocence when compared to the sixteenth paragraph. This latter, put into the document to please Aligeld and get the red-flag vote of Chicago, is not a simple menace to the people's commerce and industries; it assails the very foundations of order. It is a bid for chaos. It is a declaration against the suppression of any mob that may proclaim as its mission the "vindication of the people's rights."

Drep all the tremendous objections to the financial deliverance, and this open alliance with all that is lawless and hateful in American society ought to secure for the platform and ticket the overwhelming condemnation of the intelligent masses.

NO THIRD TICKET.

NO THIRD TICKET.

From The Chicago Record.

If the gold-standard Democrats seriously believe that the triumph of the free-sliver ticket will be disastrous, and if they place the interest of the country above that of party, they will not place a separate Presidential ticket in the field, but will leave the fight to be determined between the two opposing tickets now before the country, meanwhile making all other preparations for placing a ticket in the field in the next campaign. From The Chicago Record.

IMPALED ON THE HORNS OF THE DILEMMA. From The Charleston News and Courier.

From The Charleston News and Courier.

There was never such a kettle of fish; never so much dissatisfaction in the Democratic ranks, never so strong a disposition to stick to the party and never so little encouragement in a Democrate platform for Democrats to abide by its declarations. If Mr. Bryan had been nominated by a Populist fonvention on the platform adopted at Chicago—the platform is more Populist than Democratic—we would all say that Democrats should not vete for him. The only reason for urging Democrats to vote for him now is that he has the Democratic name. We could not advise any one to vote for McKinley, because of his platform and the party which he represents—we cannot arge Democrats to vote for Bryan, when we urged them to vote against Weaver.

PREPARING FOR A WATERLOO.

From The Kansas City Star.

It would seem that, in turning their backs upon the leader who restored the party to power after a retirement of a quarter of a century, and in becoming the sponsor of a vitiated currency, the Democratic politicians who controlled the Convention at Chicago have prepared the way for another Waterloo, and for the defeat as overwhelming and disastrous as that which overtook the Democracy in 1869, when the enlightened and humane sentiment of the country repudiated that corrupted organization because of its cowardly and service devotion to the awful sin of human bondage.

ANOTHER TICKET DEMANDED From The Kansas City Star.

ANOTHER TICKET DEMANDED.

From The Chicago Chronicle.

The man who now arrays himself on the side of the ignorant and immoral wretches who, in the interest of the Big Bonanza silver monopolists, propose to cut in two every workingman's wages, every savings-bank deposit, every obligation of whatever description, closes upon himself a political door that will never be reopened. It is the honor and the privilege of the real Democracy to prevent these calamitous consequences. The call for a conference of representative Democrats should be issued at once, and there should be no unnecessary delay in the assembling of the new Convention. The Chicago Chronicle.

DESTROYING CIVILIZATION From The Memphis Herald.

It means the tearing down of the edifices of civilization in which centuries have been exhausted in upbuilding. It means the flouting of the flag of communism in the face of conservatism. It means that the sansculottes have succeeded in securing the ascendency, and with mad riot in the full exercise of unaccustomed power they are willing to wanton with serious problems.

THE HIGHER DUTY.

From The Lexington (Ky.) Herald. While the American citizen owes a duty to the party whose cause he has espoused, he owes a very much higher and more sacred duty to his country.

A GERMAN ORGAN FOR M'KINLEY. A GERMAN ORGAN FOR M'KINLEY.

From The Davenport (lowa) Demokrat. (German.)

Whenever a faction puts itself in control of a party and makes the same subservient to its own interests and forces, upon such party a creed which is inimical to the best interests of the whole people, then there is no more room left for the honest and patriotic citizen in such an organization, and a separation becomes necessary. The commonweal ought to stand for something higher than the success of the party, and since we consider the interests of this country, at present, safer under Republican administration than under a revolutionary element of Populists, and similar violent elements, and the perpetrators of a coup d'etat, therefore "Der Demokrat" will support in the present campaign the ticket headed by McKinley and Hobart.

From The Davenport (Iowa) Morning Democrat, It is painful to see a party which less than fou years ago was indorsed by such an overwheimin majority in the election of its leader to the Presidency now abandon the principles which led to it most signal triumph. "The Democrat" does not in tend to renounce those cardinal principles which is has so long upheld and defended. It will follow in the future the lines that have shaped its course if the past. the past; the past; At all times "The Democrat" considers National bone above party fealty.

SEEN WITH OTHER EYES, PERHAPS.

From The Baltimore Sun.

It is tolerably clear that McKinley, standing only for the cause of ultra protectionism, which is all that his candidacy originally represented, could not have carried the country. But McKinley, standing where by his speech of Saturday last at Canton, Ohlo, he placed himself as the standard-bearer of all the voters who believe that President Cleveland's undeviating loyalty to the existing standard of values must be maintained by his successor, is a far different figure. The faithful Democrats who pleaded in vain for a hearing at Chicago will be heard in the final reckoning at the ballot-box. From The Baltimore Sun.

SHALL THERE BE A THIRD TICKET? A DIFFICULTY AGITATING THE MINDS OF DEMO-CRATS-THE DIFFERING CONDITIONS To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: The question of a third ticket or no third ticket, which just now agitates the minds of many Democrats, is one which really involves some difficulty. Presuming that the Democrats who refuse to support Bryanism have no other object than to make sure of the defeat of a dangerous assault on the Nation's honor and prosperity, it may be said that their votes will count, if cast directly for A Kinley, and will not count at all if cast for a third ticket, or if they simply refuse to vote. But that is not the whole of the matter, as Controller Eckels forcibly urges. The object of such Democrats is to reach as many of their Democratic friends as they can, to obtain a hearing with them, and thus to convince them of the folly and danger of the Populist scheme. But they can reach comparatively few Democratic voters if they speak from Republican platforms, and are there hampered by their opposition to some principles of Republican seems probable that a third ticket would keep back many thousand Democratic votes which would otherwise be east for Bryan as the only Democratic candidate, and far more than such a ticket would divert from the direct support of McKinley. It would therefore be a distinct advantage, so far as can be judged from the information at this point, and would involve no risk in most of the Central and Southern States. If in one or two the Republican silver vote seems likely to be considerable, a direct concentration of all the anti-silver votes on one ticket would there be more desirable; but must be remembered that in all these States the Republicans have been fighting against free silver and Populism and all its heresies for years, and have rescued their States from the grasp of softmoney men who once controlled them, and that voters who have once been sufficiently enlightened to abandon such delusions do not go back to them. effect of the movement has to be most exrefully considered with reference to the actual condition in each State for itself. If there is sincere harmony between the gold Democrats and the Republicans in desire to beat the Populist revolu-tion, the right way can be found in each State. In the Eastern States, where the regular Demo eratic organization is against free silver, the third ticket would involve embarrassment rather than

The Republicans will have in their favor, first, clear majorities over all parties, and, second Democrats, many of whom will vote straight for McKinley in any case. It is not likely that a third ticket would divert from his support any considerable number of such voters. The Democratic organizations can be preserved from the control of Populism only by some positive action for a National ticket. If the Democrats put up electors pledged to support the anti-Bryan Democratic candidate, it must be expected that a "regular Democratic" organization will be formed by the Populist Democrats, and also if the Convention declines to appoint any Democratic electors. It is a question more interesting to Democrats, with reference to the future of their organization, than to anybody else, because the cause of Protection with honest money will surely win large majorities for the Republican ticket, whether there be one or many tickets in opposition. Democrats, many of whom will vote straight for ticket, whether there be one or many tickets in opesition.

It is the declared purpose of the sound-money organizations at the West to put up a "genuine Democratic" ticket, denouncing the Bryan ticket as strictly Populist and not Democratic at all, and that course in many Western States may in all probability be found the safest and surest to make the defeat of Anarchists overwheming. But in order to attain the best results the movement should be rapid, because every week's delay will push into the Populist fold a good many voters who are in the habit of voting anything labelled Democratic.
